NEWSPAPER MEN.

As an editor, no man in America is superior, in my judgment, to Frederick Hudson, managing editor of the Herald. Not that Mr. Hudson is the most learned or polished, or naturally gifted man, possibly; but he is a born journalist, and one, too, who has grown up in the profession, having been identified with the Herald, boy and man, almost from its beginning. Mr Hudson is a Bostonian by birth. By the way, I saw, a few days ago, the first issue of the Herald, bearing date May 6th, 1835. It was a shabby affair in respect of mechanical execution, as compared with the newspapers of to-day, and of miniature size if we use the same comparison. In that particular number there was nothing very saucy, but subsequent issues would probably show more of that kind of thing than this. The Herald was started with one cardinal principal, at least, to which it has always adhered, and which is a correct one, viz: That no person or class of persons should have any advantage, in point of typographical display, or privilege of position in the columns over any other person or class of persons. The consequence of this democratic policy has been that the paper has made and kept friends with the poor and the humble, and these, in great numbers, rally to its standard. Every stage driver and corner grocerymen wants to see the Herald (as also does almost everybody else to know what is in it) and though the patronage of people of equivocal respectability, may not be quite what æsthetic gentlemen would first prefer, still bad men's money is just as valuable as good men's, and the Herald has never been anything better than a pecuniarily successful [illegible] tor has endured far more stripes than St. Paul ever dreamed of having been cowhided nine times,) and the concern has never enjoyed anything to be called a reputation, unless the adjective "bad" be prefixed. Of the younger journalists of this city there are several of great promise; among them. Thos. A. Kennett of the World, Daniel K. O'Donnell of the Tribune, and Augustus Maverick of the Evening Post. The best editorial writters, and each inimitable in his way are George Wilkes of the Spirit of the Times, Sidney Howard Gay Charles T. Congdan of the Tribune, William H. Hurlburt of the World and Charles Nordhoff of the Evening Post. The best American political statistician living, connected with the Press, is probably Horace Greeley; and the next best Franklin J. Uttarson, managing editor of the Times, though Thomas G. Shearman, a lawyer, is a perfect cyclopedia of political knowledge, and is a very useful man for more than one newspaper establishment.—Y. C. Cor. Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

The history of Mexico shows that during the last forty years Mexico has had thirty-seven different forms of government, thirty-two of which were "Republics," and seventy-five Presidents. It's revolutions during that time have amounted to over two hundred.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, Feb 14 1866

Mormon Power.

The Gentiles and dissenting Mormons have become a power in Utah, and are already dreaded by the Hierarchy and their creatures, who have—for years of guilt and crime—managed or rather fearfully mismanaged the affairs of this Territory—elevating to place not only the local officials, but even the Congressional delegates, without so much as the form of law, determining everything by the one will power, with a despotism as absolute as the Turk. For weeks past the Bishops and orators of the Church party have been most urgent and exhaustive in their appeals to the people, to take out their naturalization papers—warning them most piteously that the craft was in imminent peril, that the enemy was concentrating his forces to overwhelm the faithful at the coming election, to deprive them of their splendid opportunities to milk the Gentiles, and of the monopoly of the liquor trade—so productive of revenue to the church saloons and church liquor stores—and to play smash generally. The semi official Mormon organ, seconded with its usual force and power, their saintly efforts by various arguments, seducing the poor ignorant foreigners to take out illegal naturalization papers that will only involve them in endless litigation and expense. The Mormon officials, by way of providing for the city election, have been laboriously manufacturing votes by a process unknown to the laws—turning out citizens by the hundred, fully endowed with all their proud rights and glorious franchises, as by a patent machine, known only to the Hierarchy and their legal advisers. The leaders seem to have been possessed with the fear that the dreaded Gentiles and apostates, as they are pleased to call some of our most respectable and worthy citizens, would, on election day, meet them in stern opposition, and wrest from them the sceptre that they have so long, with the aims and purposes of the tyrant, wielded.

On Monday last the polls were opened at the City Hall, and the new made citizens—from the mighty work shops of their creation, with the varnish of patriotism fresh upon them—rushed in crowds to deposit their ballots for the selected candidates of the priesthood, and to bar the Gentiles from their saintly traffic in "Valley Tan" and "dead-shot at forty-rod whisky." Of course they had the matter their own way. The opposition, though formidable, yet under the present regime, expected no justice, and therefore deferred the contest to another and more auspicious occasion when the Eagle of Liberty, and not the Vulture of Avarice, shall preside over the ballot box in Utah.

We warn those who here seek to establish a detested mongrel church and State despotism, on American soil, and to exercise a tyrannic rule over loyal American citizens, taxing them to build up a system they abhor and loath—a system hostile to their cherished convictions and fondest hopes—trenching on their sacred rights to uphold the interests of grasping monopolists, we warn them that they have gained their last City election. A new power is here springing into vigorous maturity, with terrible elements of protest and assured pledges of victory. You have made for yourselves a record of condemnation and defeat, that will one day overwhelm you beyond redemption. That record, at the fitting time, we will spread before the people and rouse them against your tyranic rule. We are marshaling our forces—our purposes are deepening. The work goes bravely on. In the good time coming little boys of thirteen (13) will hardly be allowed to take their first public lesson in deception, at the ballot box, and to desecrate the proud right of manhood, in America.

We are perfectly satisfied, gentlemen, that you should have your day of fun, that you should parade your bogus strength, and that, like children, you should exult in the victory without the conflict; it is your last. The time is at hand, when you will have to deal with aroused, enlightened men, who know their right and "knowing dare maintain;" whose calm determined purpose will be found to be as immutable as fate. They will break your rule and save the people from your unjust exactions.

The Diplomatic Gallery was occupied exclusively by the families of members of the Diplomatic Corps, and the other gallery was crowded with ladies and gentlemen holding tickets. The Marine Band, stationed in the upper vestibule, discoursed appropriate music, ceasing when the exercises commenced. All being in readiness at half past twelve, Lafayette Foster, President of the Senate, called the two Houses to order. Prayer was offered by Rev. Dr. Boynton, Chaplain of the House. The presiding officer then introduced the Hon. Geo. Bancroft, of New York, who delivered an oration, at the Clerk's table, occupying two hours and which was heard with marked attention. At the conclusion, a benediction was pronounced by the Rev. Dr. Gray, Chaplain of the Senate.

Boston, Feb. 12.

A dispatch from Concord, N. H., reports much excitement among the directors and stockholders of the Concord Railroad Corporation, caused by developments said to implicate passengers, conductors and other parties with embezzlement and issuing spurious railroad tickets. Property to amount of $300,000, belonging to alleged defaulters, has been attached, and legal proceedings instituted.

Washington, Feb. 12.

The interview between the President and the colored delegation on Wednesday 7th, was colloquial. From a full report of that interview in the National Intelligencer, filling two columns, is the following: After the President had expressed a desire to do all things proper and just for the benefit of the colored race, and if they could find no other Moses, he would be their Moses to lead them from the land where they had been in bondage to the land of freedom. He said, turning to Fred. Douglas—"Have you lived on a plantation?" Douglas—"I have, your Excellency." President—"When you would look on and see a man who had a large family struggling hard upon a poor piece of land, you thought a great deal less of him than of your own master?" Douglas—"Not so, President, although well I know such was the case with a large majority of them in those sections,—where such is the case we know there is enmity; we know there is hate; the poor white man on the other hand was opposed to the slave and his master, for the colored man and his master combined kept him in slavery by depriving him of a fair participation in the labor and productions of the country. The query comes up whether these two races situated as they were, before the war, without preparation, without time for passion and excitement to be appeased and without time for the slightest improvement, whether one should be turned loose upon the other and he thrown together at the ballot box with this enmity and hate existing between them. Quarry arises, if there we dont commence a war of races. I think I understand this question especially in this case when you force it upon the people without their consent. Now where do you begin? For instance, suppose Congress should pass a law authorizing an election at which all over 21 years of age, without regard to color, be allowed to vote, and a majority should decide election franchise not to be universal: what would you do? Who would settle it? Do you deny that first great principle of the right of the people to govern themselves? Will you resort to arbitrary power, and say the majority shall receive a seat of things they are opposed to? Douglas—"That was said before the war." President—"I am talking about a principle, not what may have been said before the war." Douglas—"Apply what you have said Mr. President, to South Carolina for instance." President—"Suppose you go to South Carolina; suppose you go to Ohio; that does not change the principle at all, each community is to determine the depository of its political power; it is a fundamental tenet in my creed that the will of the people, when fairly expressed at the ballot box must be obeyed. Is there anything wrong or unfair in that?" Douglas—"A great deal wrong, Mr. President, with all respect." President—"It is the people of the States that must for them selves determine this matter. I do not want to be engaged in a work that will commence a war of races. I want to begin a work of reparation. I would it were so, that all rights could be done in the twinkling of an eye. But it is not in the nature of things, and I do not assume or pretend to be wiser than Providence or stronger than the laws of nature." Douglas—"My own impression is that the very thing your Excellency would avoid in the Southern States can only be avoided by the very measure we propose, and I would state to my brother delegates, that because I perceive, the President has taken strong ground in favor of a given policy, and distrusting my own ability to remove any of those impressions which he has expressed, I thought we had better end the interview." President—"I think you will find, so far as the South is concerned, that if you will all inculcate there an idea in connection with the one you urge, that colored people can live and advance in civilization to better advantage elsewhere, than crowded together in the Southern States it would be better for them." Douglas—"But we cannot get away from the plantations." President—"If the master now controls in action would he not control in vote?" Douglas—"Let the negro once understand that he has an organic right to vote, and he will raise up a party in the Southern States among the poor who will rally with him there. Is the conflict that you speak of between the wealthy slaveholder and the poor man?" President—"You touch the right part there. There is a conflict, and hence I suggest emigration if he cannot get employment in the South; he has it in his power to and where he can [illegible]." In parting, the President said, they were both desirous of accomplishing the same

The alleged boat burners, John G. Parks of Habeas Corpus notoriety and Smith Lepille held as States' evidence, were released from military custody, Friday, by order from the War Department. Lepille started immediately for Mobile, but Parks remains in the city, for the release of Parks was dated in January and his counsel says it was in the hands of the commander of the department, while he was attempting to liberate the prisoner by Habeas Corpus.

The most important change is a decrease of two million three hundred thousand in deposits, and eight hundred thousand in specie.

James R. Cole, alleged Lake Erie steamboat incendiary, was this morning brought before Judge Gilbert on a writ of Habeas Corpus. The Government made no return and the prisoner was discharged by order of the Court.

Washington, Feb. 12.

Mr. Bancroft was frequently interrupted by applause, especially in those parts he emphasized and in which, while speaking of Great Britain, he said, let the reform bill infuse new life into the British Constitution by conferring rightful powers on the people and we cannot be indifferent to the country that produces Statesmen like Cobden and Bright; but the best bower anchor of peace was the working classes of England, who suffered most from our civil war; but, while they broke diminished bread in sorrow always encouraged us to persevere. The orator's contrast of Palmerston and Lincoln, the former of whom after a few years was hardly to be noticed beside Essex and Chatham, but the latter to be remembered through all time, received applause which was more emphatic, however, when the orator exclaimed, "The Republic of Mexico must rise again!" Portions of his address about the emancipation proclamation and utterances of the late President in favor of freedom, especially his wish expressed three days before his assassination, that the elective franchise would be safe on the very intelligent among colored men, and those who had served in the war, but that the franchise should be conferred by the States themselves and that he, Lincoln, never harbored a thought of enacting it received cheers at up, is[illegible]. At the conclusion of the address, Bancroft was surrounded with distinguished auditors giving their congratulations.

Chicago, Feb. 13.

A card is published in the New York Times, on the authority of Wm. H. Aspinwall, giving particulars of the additional steamship line between New York and San Francisco, via Panama; and protesting that the movement will not degenerate into a black mailing scheme. He is equally emphatic that the experiment will be practically tried and hoped to prove permanent. The capital is four millions of which three millions have been subscribed, the other one million will not be offered until the first steamer sails. The directors, it is understood, will consist of Wm. H Aspinwall and S W Comstock, of the original Pacific M S Co, and six other well known men, two of whom probably will be Californians. The statement that Assistant Secretary of the Navy, G. V. Fox, has resigned to take the presidency of the Co. is fully confirmed. Capt. R H. Gearson, long in service of the old Co. on the Pacific sides, was offered choice of ships in the new line, and Capt. Sabige recently disconnected from service of the old line, will take out the first steamer, which is expected will sail from New York early in March. Capt. Stout, for many years in charge of steamer arrangements on the Isthmus, has gone there to perfect similar arrangements for the new line. The Panama Rail Road is bound to observe strict neutrality between the competing lines. It is proposed to run semi monthly trips only, at the beginning. The new Co begin with four side wheel steamers, well known as the New Orleans Star Line; also four propeller steamers employed on the Pacific side, which will comfortably carry from 900 to 1000 passengers. It is believed there is abundance of business for two first class lines at handsomely remunerating rates.

NICE CLIMATE.—The Sacramento Union of Monday, Feb 5th, says:

The approach of Spring is indicated by the music of meadow larks in the morning, and bull-frogs in the evening, both of which have attracted attention in the suburbs of the city during the past few days. Swallows are also making their appearance in numbers. Grass and grain are growing finely, producing an abundance of food everywhere in the valley for horses and cattle.

Local and Miscellaneous.

EXPERIENCE and wisdom are the two best fortune-tellers.

REMEMBER that large sale of government mules and horses today.

THE Golden Age which arrived at San Francisco on the 3d, brought passengers from New York in twenty-one days, through.

THE mining prospect for 1866, throughout all the gold and silver producing States and Territories, is far more full of rich promise than ever before.

REMEMBER the grand Fenian Benefit at the Academy of Music to morrow evening. See the programmes around town, and secure your tickets in time.

Many millions of oranges have been supplied San Francisco this year from the Sandwich Islands, being equal to the whole number sent it within the last ten years.

QUID PRO QUO.—The "Locals" of the Mozeltov-spread are receiving nice presents from admiring personal friends and reporting the presentation ceremonies in their respective dailies.

NOTICE.—Mr. J. Meeks, of the Pioneer Jewelry Store, has a notice elsewhere, about his visit to San Francisco and soliciting commission favors. Read it. In his absence Mr. Barlow will conduct the business here.

GOOD FOR HER.—Stonewall Jackson's widow had a benefit concert at Richmond Va., the other night, on which occasion the building was crowded with "the beauty, fashion, and intelligence" of that capital.

The following lines illustrate the five different modes of pronouncing the syllable spelt "ough" in different words:

"Be dist of plough in awest of brow,
His tallows through with much ado,
Hodge earns enough of this world's stuff,
While from his trough feed swine well off."

CASING THE PRESS.—Vessels have been chartered to bring bamboo from the West Indies or New York for the manufacture of paper for the press. Bamboozling newspapers bearing the mark of Case will probably be "rife" among them after their arrival.

GRAND MASONIC BALL.—Our home and distant readers will observe, by announcement in another column, that a "First Grand Masonic Ball" is to be given in honor of "The Father of his Country," on the evening of the 22d inst., at the Salt Lake House. Particulars appear elsewhere.

CITY LIVERY AND FEED STABLE.—Mr. Wm. Jackson, of the Eureka Livery, next to the Mansion House, has just opened another livery and feed stable up town, for the better convenience of his customers of city and camp. It is situated round the corner, 2d South street, nearly opposite Heller & Snyder's, on the same square with the Deseret Corral. See his card elsewhere.

THE San Francisco press make favorable mention of Messrs. Aaron Stein and Len. Wines, at the Occidental in that city. And well they may, for these gentlemen officers, of Overland Mail employ, are par nobile fratrum—or, classically speaking, a whole team!

P. S.—Since scribbling the above, we had the pleasure of greeting the redoubtable Mr. Stein referred to, at the Overland Mail Office, in this city, just as he returned yesterday afternoon, in company with Col. McComb. Mr. Stein has seen much and met with many, at the metropolis of the Pacific, that pleased him highly. He promised the particulars at the earliest leisure.

THE people of San Francisco are, just now, in a state of general dissatisfaction with everything and everybody. The school system lits heavily on one portion of the municipal stomach. The police are either doing too much, or not doing enough. Somebody wants a paid fire department. There's everybody grumbling over too much rain, leaky roofs, and muddy drinking water. The papers are pooh-ing spiritualism, and one of them believes in no spiritual calls save the Morning Call. The Bulletin is mad over the exodus to the New Granada gold diggings.

Forms of Society and Government.

The true and legitimate ends of society are, to secure to each member the greatest possible amount of personal liberty, by taking from him only such of his natural rights as are necessary to put into successful operation a good and salutary government.

The form of Government bequeathed to us by our fathers is, beyond a question, in theory, the most perfect ever devised by man, and more fully meets the ends of society than any other.

Under this form, sovereignty resides in the people; under the opposing forms, it resides in the head of a few individuals.

Under this form, the government derives its rights from the people; under the opposing forms, the people derive their rights from the government.

Under this form, every member of society occupies the elevated position of citizen, and feels around him that constitutent portion of the sovereignty of his country; under opposing forms, he is

That the monogamous system of society is the fountain-head of our civil and religious institutions, is demonstrated by experience. This system creates, in the family circle, unity, harmony and love.—It creates and fosters in the youthful mind the most delicate and ennobling sentiments. Its associations are, father, mother, sister, brother, home and heaven. These associations, under this system, are most tender and endearing. Their influences are never lost. They continually cluster around the memory. They follow the man through all the vicissitudes of life, cheering and urging him forward in the paths of virtue, but admonishing and restraining him in the paths of vice. From this system, America's "grandeur springs, that makes her loved at home, revered abroad."

That Polygamy corrupts and poisons this spring, by mixing with its pure water the virulent and deadly substances of adultery and concubinage, none but the arrant knave, whose highest and only aim in life is the gratification of his carnal lust, (though it be done at the sacrifice of every woman's virtue and self-respect,) or an ignorant fool, will deny.

There are two classes of wrong-doers in society. One disobeys the laws, or by force seeks to subvert and overturn the government. The other prevents the execution of the laws, and revolutionizes or overturns the government, by disseminating vicious principles.

The first class can be reached and restrained by penal sanctions; the other can only be reached by public sentiment.

The open and notorious law-breaker is infamous; but what shall be said of him who not only violates the law himself, and instigates others to do the same, but disseminates sentiments which are in direct conflict with the plainest principles of right and Christianity, and poison the moral atmosphere and strike at the very foundation of society? Such men are more infamous than the common felon.—Such men as these are the leaders of the Mormon people.

Their autocrat strives to engulf the whole of the community in the vortex of his own debasement.

How long shall this vampire be permitted to prey upon the vitals of our institutions? How much longer must this moral nuisance be endured?

Let all the powers of the law and public sentiment be united in its complete and speedy abatement. Let public sentiment strip from the shoulders of this autocrat his robes of hypocrisy, and expose his deceptions and moral deformity; and let the law vigorously ply the lash of Justice.

It is a dishonor to the nation, and speaks poorly for the vigilance with which Americans discharge the sacred trust given into their hands by their fathers, that Polygamy, its cause and support, have not ere this been overthrown.

A War Department order has been received, discharging civilians from the military service where soldiers and particularly disabled ones can be found to fill their places.

Pat. Lynch filed a petition in insolvency to-day. He made $20,000 in three years as a saloon keeper in Virginia.—His debts are now $27,000. His only assets are a lot worth $10,000, but which is mortgaged for $4,000, and his saloon here, which has been seized under attachment.

[We extract the following from a letter of A. D. Richardson, published in the New York Tribune of January 27th.]

Mormon Villages and Farms—Morrisville and its History—An Off-Shoot of Mormonism—Gen. Connor and His Indian Policy.

For hours, along the north bank of the Great Salt Lake, we view its shining mirror of water, its purple mountains of island, the pale violet peaks of its further shore, and still beyond, gauzy clouds of purest white against a sky of deepest blue. Pass thrifty Mormon villages of dull brown adobe houses, with flourishing orchards and shading cottonwood, their streets watered by little, artificial streams; and valley farms with broad fields, great shocks of corn and huge stacks of barley. Multitudes of white-headed children attest the presence of their Peculiar Institution, while men with guns on their shoulders, passing from house to house, show preparations for the grand military muster of the Saints to begin on the morrow at Salt Lake City. Morrisville was built by Mormon followers of Morris, a strange fanatic, who out-Brighamed Brigham. Persuading them that the world with all its people except themselves was about to be destroyed, he taught them to seize the horses, cattle and grain of their neighbors, upon the theory that the earth and the fruits thereof belong to the chosen of the Lord. It was a part of their religion." But in the Autumn of 1862, the Mormons marched an army against the schismatics, who fought them bravely in a pitched battle. The prophet fell with a bullet in his brain; a number of his deluded followers, including women and children, were killed, and all were utterly routed and driven out. Cannot Brigham learn from this that religion is no panoply for what the whole world regards as a crime? Let him ponder the lesson. He who will not be ruled by the rudder must be ruled by the rock."

Gen Connor, who still commands the United States forces in Utah, fed and sheltered the surviving Morrisites until Spring, then gave them escort and transportation to Soda Springs, Idaho, where they now reside. I think they do not try their old practice upon their Indian neighbors; for that is a diversion at which the noble savage can beat any white man, after giving him several points in the game. The Tribune erroneously connects Gen. Connor as name with barbarities towards the Indians. A brave and worthy officer, who by merit alone has risen from the rank to a brigadier-generalship, he is the most successful Indian fighter since Harney. But he neither advocates nor practices the murder of peaceable men, nor the slaughter, scalping and mutilation of women and children. From the Rocky Mountains to the Pacific almost everybody talks in

"Oh! then from Childhood's hour—

'Twas ever thus from childhood's hour—
I've seen my fondest hopes decay
I never had a dog, or cow or
Hen that laid an egg a day
But what 'twas marked and took away.

ATTENTION BATTALION.
WHAT everybody says must be true, and all agree, that the best place in Utah Territory to obtain a square meal is at Forscutt's Union Restaurant,
Camp Douglas.
Officers and Gentlemen residing at Camp Douglas have already learned where they can obtain the best board on the most advantageous terms and patronize this house, extensively but there is room for more.
Soldiers and transient residents will find a well filled table and courteous civility ever awaiting them and of which they can avail themselves at all hours of the day. jan17-tf
